In 1892, all the Literary, Musical and Art Clubs, of Fort Wayne, were called together and a federation of clubs was formed, known as "The Woman's Club League." Its common purpose was to promote a larger growth of a Civic, Educational, Social and Art Spirit, than could come through the limitations of the smaller Literary Clubs.

The results of this movement have been manifold. First, A magnificent Public Library stands as a monument to the first work undertaken by the League, in 1893.

Second, Departments for separate working sections were formed, thus serving to bring the numerous clubs into closer and more sympathetic relations. These departments include Art, Domestic Science, Education and Civic Improvement.

In the Art Section—Over one hundred pictures have been placed in the Public Schools. In Domestic Science—An effort to equip a school for domestic science in the New Manual Training School building is being made. In the Educational Section—Two Traveling Libraries have been formed, to circulate in the schools in the outskirts of the town, and in the Civic Improvement, reforms in sanitation of slaughter houses and impure drinking water have been obtained. Waste paper boxes placed on the street corners and schools; seeds distributed in the schools for home planting, and prizes awarded for successful flower gardens.

In 1897 incorporation articles were secured, and for seven years a series of lectures have been conducted along economic, literary, musical and dramatic lines; thus the aim for culture and progress has been definite, and the League holds for its standard, Progress, Reform and Untiring Effort.
